

New Anti-Poverty Organization Set Up Here By Fiscal Court

County Judge Takes Initiative, Has 12-Member Advisory Committee Incorporated Today in Frankfort

Perry County Judge Babe C. Noplis is in Frankfort today to have incorporated an organization to help wage Perry County's anti-poverty war.

The name of the organization, to be composed of 12 men "from all walks of Perry County life," including some retired and unemployed, is The Perry County Advisory Committee.

The action follows by a week a trip to Washington, D. C., where Judge Noplis submitted to the Office of Economic Opportunity a request for $44,000 anti-poverty money, to hire a full-time planner and staff who would draw up a detailed, comprehensive program aimed at improving conditions in Perry County.

"The fundamental and primary purpose of this corporation is to deal with the problems of poverty among the poor in Perry County, Kentucky," the articles of incorporation said. "Said corporation shall have the necessary power to formulate policy and to implement all programs dealing with the alleviation of poverty in Perry County, Kentucky, including applying to the federal government for all types of grants and assistance which might be provided under the Economic Opportunity Act or any other federal fund."

Although the Judge and the Fiscal Court are responsible for the birth of the new organization, Noplis emphasized yesterday that neither he nor any magistrate will belong to it.

The articles of incorporation for The Perry County Advisory Committee explain the Committee relationship to the Fiscal Court like this:

"This corporation shall also set up, in the disbursement of any funds that might be used for the alleviation of poverty in Perry County, Kentucky, the Perry County Fiscal Court as trustee for said funds, and the Perry County Fiscal Court shall act under this corporation both as a depository for any funds received and as payee for all funds disbursed through this poverty program in Perry County, Kentucky."

The incorporation articles went on to say that "this corporation will grant to the Fiscal Court the right to veto, under certain conditions, any proposed projects that are set up that will incur indebtedness to the county, and (2) the right to veto the expenditure of any funds that might be used in any overlapping project in which other existing funds might be available through other projects or existing agencies and that might conflict with the work of this corporation."

The new Advisory Committee is the second Perry County anti-poverty organization to be incorporated in the last two weeks.

January 12 the Perry County Development Association, an organization of long-standing here, was incorporated for the first time.

Since passage of the anti-poverty act, the Association has been recognized as the coordinating body for various groups in the county who hope to promote separate anti-poverty projects in particular communities. Floyd Hall is the president.

The Development Association has invited representative groups throughout the county, including the Fiscal Court, to send a delegate as a permanent member of the Association.

Organizations so invited are, in addition to the Fiscal Court, the Hazard Chamber of Commerce; Junior Chamber of Commerce; Homemakers Clubs; 4-H Advisory Council; Ministerial Association; Perry County School System; Hazard City School System; Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions Clubs; Hazard Business and Professional Women's Club; Hazard Coal Operators Association; Hazard City Government; Perry County Extension Council; Soil Conservation Service Board of Supervisors; Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service Committee; Hazard Area Vocational School; Perry County Board of Health; Perry County Medical Society; Buckhorn Watershed Association, and The Appalachian Committee For Full Employment.

Apparently neither the court or the PCDA was aware that the other was about to incorporate, and since their functions may overlap, a meeting between the two groups is likely, to determine ways to resolve any conflicts the existence of two such similar groups might create.

Judge Noplis indicated yesterday he felt the new organization was necessary because there was an apparent lack of centralized, county-wide leadership in these early stages of the war on poverty in Perry County.

The Development Association says it has been active in behind-the-scenes planning but so far has not attempted to function as an action group, as the new Advisory Committee apparently plans to do.

The Perry County Development Association has so far endorsed two anti-poverty projects originating in Perry County, and helped to plan other projects not yet submitted.

The two Perry County groups who have submitted projects are The Appalachian Committee For Full Employment, who asked for over $300,000 to finance several community centers in a four-county area, and the Perry Fiscal Court, who last week asked for $44,000 planning money.

Other local groups and individuals who endorsed the planning project besides the PCDA were the Hazard Chamber of Commerce; Perry County School System, Hazard City School System, Perry County Health Department, and the Rev. William Brown.

The $44,000 would go mostly for salaries of planners, which would include a program director and a staff of seven.

As presently conceived, the staff would include two programming aides, an education specialist, a social worker, a medical technician, a recreation technician, and a secretary.

The remainder of the funds would be spent for research, legal and engineering consultant services, office and travel expenses.

In a foreword to the program Judge Noplis carried to Washington last week, he said: "I wish to emphasize that the said Advisory Committee will be a public and non-profit organization."

The Judge said the Advisory Committee would likely wait until the Office of Economic Opportunity approved the request for planning money before it began to function.

The names of the officers and members of the Advisory Committee will also not be announced until the group is officially formed, the Judge said.

Films On Moral Re-Armament Shown At HHS

Hazard High School, Wednesday morning, culminates a weeks program in local schools of two films, produced at last summer's Conference for Tomorrow's America at Mackinac Island, Michigan.

Introducing the film, "Which Way, America?" was Hans Christian Magnus, from Norway. Mr. Magnus' family organized the Resistance Movement in his country during the Second World War. He is a skier and has just come to America from traveling in the European Countries with a Moral Re-Armament play.

At the end of the program, each of the 550 students received a copy of "Dare", the latest youth magazine in America. Citizens of Hazard made this possible because they are convinced of the dare and leadership qualities of this generation.

Coal Production Up 11.97 Per Cent

Coal production in the Hazard Field amounted to 151,550 tons during the week ended January 16, 1965 bringing the total for the year to date to 334,810 tons.

In announcing the figures, the Hazard Coal Operators Association said the week's production was 11.97 per cent above the 135,350 tons mined during the corresponding week last year. Production for the year to date indicates a decrease of 18.88 per cent under the 412,760 tons at the same date last year.

Tonnages are computed on a 50 tons-per-car basis and are subject to adjustment.

UKRADC Elects Officers, Sees Hindman School's New Anti-Poverty Project

The Upper Kentucky River Area Development Council elected new officers and approved an anti-poverty project at its regular meeting Tuesday at the Hindman Settlement School.

Replacing Willie Dawahare as chairman of the council is George Wootton, County Judge of Leslie County.

Robert Morgan, a Knott County attorney, is the new vice chairman and secretary-treasurer is Dr. Mary Pauline Fox, Health Officer for Knott County.

The anti poverty project endorsed by the Council was an application to the Office of Economic Opportunity for a $12,560 summer recreation program in a four county area.

The project is sponsored by the Hindman Settlement School. If approved, the funds will hire four full-time recreation supervisors in each of the counties concerned — Perry, Letcher, Knott and Leslie—and purchase athletic equipment.

The program would last two months only, June and July. The 10 page project application described the general conditions of the regions and cited the woeful lack of recreational opportunities in the four counties.

"One positive approach to the needs of this area is a good program of summer recreation," the application stated. "Such a program offers new opportunities for development in so many phases of one's life."

The application went on to list these advantages of the proposed recreation project:

Wholesome use of spare time; opportunity for physical development; chance to learn new athletic skills; opportunity for social growth; a challenge to those with leadership and organization abilities; fostering of community spirit; stimulates mental and physical activity, and dispels monotony during the long summer months.

"The tragedy of the mountain situation is that young people have ability—and plenty of it—but it is not being developed," the application said.

The development of confidence in young people would be a major advantage of the recreation project, according to the School's application.

As presently conceived, the four county recreation leaders would be local citizens, working in pairs.

A couple would work two communities each day, supervising specific recreational activities such as hiking, soft ball, volley ball, and group games.

Suggested indoor activities would include singing, dramatics, story telling and arts and crafts.

"The results of this program will be intangible. But when we look at the area and observe the needs of the people, we are convinced that this proposed program has valuable possibilities for the youth."

In other action at the Monday meeting, the Area Council decided to give City Planners Associates 10 days in which to show it a rough draft of plans for fighting poverty in the Upper Kentucky River Area, or else break off negotiations with the firm.

City Planners is a consulting firm in Illinois that has asked the Area Council to hire it as its planner for a broad anti-poverty program.

But the Council has not heard from the firm lately, and unless it gets a response soon, it will look to other sources for professional planners.

City Adopts Budget For 1965 Expenses

Hazard's Board of Commissioners today passed a resolution which adopts a temporary city budget, subject to revision when the annual official budget is prepared in a few weeks.

The total estimated expenses of the general government, police department, fire department and public works department is $171,438 for 1965.

This amount exceeds by a little over $8,000 last year's general expenditures, which totaled approximately $163,000.

During 1965, the City anticipates revenue from the following sources:

Current taxes, $83,000; delinquent taxes, $7,438; penalty on taxes, $1,200; police court fines, $12,000; licenses, $62,000; penalty on licenses, $700; Housing Authority (in lieu of taxes) $3,200; fire calls outside city; $300; building fees, $500; bus franchise, $100; and miscellaneous sources, $1,000.

A total of $19,888 of the general government expense of $44,299 goes for salaries of city officials and other employees.

The mayor will receive $300; the four commissioners $400 each; the city manager, $4,000; city attorney, $3,000; city clerk,

$2,400 and the city treasurer, $2,100.

'Sonny' Celebrates Belated Christmas

Lawrence "Sonny" Stacy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stacy of Hazard, will celebrate a belated Christmas today when he opens presents and eats the special dinner he missed while hospitalized in Lexington.

Sonny, a student at Hazard High School, suffered a severe head injury in a car wreck October 25 that has required two operations and kept him in the hospital until now, except for a nine day period in late November.

He arrived back home this afternoon after his release from St. Joseph's Hospital in Lexington.

Reaching Out To The People

As various groups and organizations in Perry County submit their anti poverty projects to the federal government for consideration, the need for community centers in strategic spots around the county is being given considerable attention, and rightly so.

Such centers, if ambitiously conceived, would mean a great deal to the communities they were established in, which presumably would be where people have already begun to collect, such as Vance, Leatherwood, Bulan, Chavies, Barkhorn.

By ambitious, we mean centers that would really minister to fundamental needs of the people isolated in the hollows as well as those already living in the communities. A center would employ a full-time registered nurse and permanent medical facilities and maybe, to time, even a doctor's clinic. The center would offer recreational opportunities for both young people and adults. They would provide a rallying point for each community, to make it more cohesive and thereby capable of independent initiative on its own behalf.

Such centers could become a prime motive for people living in the hollows to leave out of them, and collect on main thoroughfares. This arrangement would allow the rise of consolidated schools, reduce the Highway Department of the county of maintaining expensive roads in remote sections where only a few families live.

It would go far toward removing the handicap that a mother might die at birth simply because a vehicle was unable to navigate over impossible terrain.

A lot of people, including government planners have for a long time now looked under the wrong assumption because Kentucky mountaineers live in rural areas, they are agrarians, familiar with the soil.

This is not true. The vast majority of Eastern Kentuckians are industrial workers, and know as little about farming as industrial workers in Detroit or Cleveland.

This explains in large measure the reason more mountaineers don't raise gardens and live stock for their livelihood. There is no precedent for it. Their fathers and grandfathers worked too hard in the mines to raise gardens.

The present mountaineer isn't getting a lot of work in the mines, but neither is he prepared in any way to till the soil for his living.

So why does he choose to live in such miserable conditions far from main roads, to the detriment of his health and that of his children?

That is a good question. No doubt there are many answers, one of which might be simply that house rent is cheap there.

But perhaps the best answer is that such a man just doesn't have any alternative, and no practical reason to locate along a main road, or in a settled community.

A well-equipped community center would provide him a practical reason. A community with a health and recreational center could, in time, also become a community with good but low cost housing, perhaps public housing, which would act as another strong lure to the man now isolated in a muddy hollow.

No one should expect that everybody in Perry County is going to move to Hazard just to take advantage of city facilities. But it is conceivable that communities such as we mentioned above could attract people in the surrounding hollows to their limits, and working together as Vico is now doing, build small towns all around the county that would generally raise our whole standard of living by several levels.

The County Health Department could thus reach out to the people, with permanent quarters and permanent staff in each community, instead of requiring the people to come to Hazard for treatment. The county library could use each center as a branch and reach out to the people in ways that a bookmobile cannot. Adult education, vocational training, remedial education, all could extend their service out to people to whom getting to Hazard and back is a major difficulty.

The Perry Fiscal Court, in its anti-poverty program just submitted to the Office of Economic Opportunity, pays attention to the community center idea. The Court also recognizes the need for a professional planner to come up with an elaborate, comprehensive, county-wide plan to uplift Perry County. Both ideas are sound. We hope they grow from plan to actual reality, and soon.

Pastor Notes Spiritual Wealth

THE WAY I SEE IT.

We hear a lot about the poverty and depression in the Appalachian Mountain area. The nation gets this as its view of us through Television and Radio.

Recently I was able to attend a large Church in one of the cities in New York State. This is the way I see it.

In the Service, there, there was about five hundred and fifty (550) people. The service was somewhat ritualistic and the Choir sang several songs. The congregation also sang some songs and then the minister preached. His message was plain but concise and to the point and very informative.

In the service here in Perry in my Church, we have only thirty-five (35) who attended the services and we have no choir. Our services are simple and plain but we sing congregational hymns. Our congregation of thirty-five have more life and looking in them than that huge congregation.

The way I see it, we may not have wealth or nice clothes, beautiful homes, or nice cars, but when it comes to the most important part, spirituality, we excel and have great wealth. We therefore, are wealthier than they. We know our neighbor and are concerned for him. We share each others feelings and are realistic in life. They are not. I feel we have more than they when it is considered. We still have humanity in our life.

Some time ago it was necessary for me to contact the Chamber of Commerce in Pineville. I tried to find a phone listed for them but the operator could not and finally she came up with this number 337-2902. I asked who that was and she told me it was the "Department of Anything You Want."

Save Bonds For College

Like so many other prices, the cost of a college education is on the rise too. Already it will average $1500 a year or more. And the forecasters are saying it will hit $2500 by 1975.

More and more parents are becoming concerned about their ability to provide higher education for their youngsters. If you are one of these, here's a tip that might help. The obvious answer to the problem is to start early and save regularly.

But a leaflet by the Treasury Department has this further idea. Buy Savings Bonds issued in the name of your child, with yourself or wife named as beneficiary, not the owner. That moves the Federal income tax liability to the child. But if the accumulated interest (plus other income) does not exceed $900 in any one year, he will owe no tax at all. Or if you choose, the tax liability may be deferred until the bonds are cashed. The bond owner has this choice.

Williamsburg Gets An Industry

An article reprinted below describes the town of Williamsburg's successful efforts to attract small industry to its locale.

The article describes a formula for attracting industry that has worked well in other mountain communities: the local Chamber of Commerce sees to it that that an industrial development group is organized to raise funds and purchase a factory site, which is offered free to a company to move right into.

In Williamsburg's case, an eleven and a half acre site was bought by the developers, and donated to Kentucky Mills, Inc., a wood pallet plant.

The plant is small, but it gives full-time employment directly to 24 people in the plant, with an average annual payroll between $50,000 and $75,000. Since the raw material is in the form of low-grade logs, local timber owners are provided a new market for previously unmarketable timber.

Williamsburg is thus another example of a town out to help itself, an example Hazard needs to study and emulate.

Like Williamsburg, Hazard needs first to unify its efforts, establish common goals among its leadership, and be consistent in its approach.

One week one leader will cry that a diversified economy is what we need, small industries of various kinds dotted about the landscape.

The next week another leader will proclaim that we don't want industry here because automation will soon make it obsolete. Tourism is the answer.

Like horses in the same harness but Boone Boy Industries at Blackey is an example of local industry through local initiative similar to that recently shown in Williamsburg. The kennel coal sacking operation employs 8 people.

pulling in opposite directions, those who would lead Hazard are trying to lead in opposite directions, and the result is that we are presently going precisely nowhere.

If Hazard had a professional planner, a trained and experienced man in these affairs, whose judgement all of the town's conflicting interests would respect, perhaps this stalemate could be broken. The finding and the hiring of such a man would be a good and perhaps necessary investment for our town.

Automation: Friend Or Foe?

Is automation a friend to man, or one of his worst enemies?

Does automation improve the human condition by enabling machines to produce more goods faster for more people, or does it undermine the place of the worker in our society by displacing thousands of jobs each day?

The automation of the coal industry is obviously the main force that has reduced Eastern Kentucky to the state it is in today.

When mining was done by men, any man who wanted to work had plenty of opportunities. Now that it is done mostly by machines, thousands of men who want to work can't, and are reduced to a meager livelihood on public welfare.

Obviously then, automation, as it applies to the coal industry, has so far been no friend to the mass of people who depended on the coal industry for their living. And there is considerable speculation that what automation has done to the coal industry, it will also do to other industries, in time.

From that limited perspective, then, the conclusion would seem to be that automation is a major threat to the well-being of our society.

But limited perspectives are always deceiving. They inhibit the broad view of things, and obscure certain realities that also must be considered.

An important consideration that isn't often talked about is that automation is not a new thing at all. It has been with us at least since the Industrial Revolution, and in some ways longer than that.

Most of the major inventions since the Industrial Revolution have, in one way or another, contributed to the rise of automation, and, incidentally, to the rise of our standard of living as well. Examples are easy to come by. But for purposes of discussion, consider only the effects the typewriter has had on clerical procedure the world over.

The invention and widespread use of the typewriter, in the 19th century, made it possible for one person to do the clerical jobs of perhaps ten fellow workers. Companies and government employed whole armies of scribes just to handle routine paper work, copying, recording, correspondence.

Whether or not the invention of the typewriter was then viewed with grave dismay, because it threw so many scribes out of work, is not one of the major chapters of our history. It is safe to say, though, that no one today will argue against the typewriter. It has become an indispensable item in every office. It is an example of automation as man's benevolent friend.

The typewriter also serves as a good example of automation as man's potential enemy. For just as the typewriter displaced thousands of manual scribes, so is the typist of today about to be displaced by a recent invention, the copying machine, of which Xerox is the most famous example.

Obviously, such machines are eventually going to make many common typists completely unnecessary to the modern company or government office. Whereas the typist cheers automation for inventing the typewriter, he will now curse the copying machine as a diabolical invention designed to add to America's swelling ranks of unemployed.

There is no easy answer to the problems automation poses to modern society. The most established view so far seems to be that we can't live with automation but we can't live without it either, so where do we go from here?

Obviously, we have to go somewhere, and we can't wait until the full burden of the problem is on us before we decide where that somewhere is. It is a problem that government must deal with and one that every man with a job at stake should inform himself about.

Like most of our 20th century problems, it is one that will require unheard of methods to cope with. We must be willing to break old precedents to have a bold and far-seeing vision in order to deal with this and other problems we haven't even recognized yet. A changing world requires changing attitudes of the people who would inhabit it.

Cheap rent attracts many to sub-standard homes in isolated hollows, like this one. A community center could encourage them to move closer to an established community.

Local Initiative Draws Industry To Williamsburg, Ky.

Chamber of Commerce Takes The Lead

One of the major industrial development projects to reach this summer is the new $50,000 wood pallet plant which was located at Williamsburg, in Whitley County, on July 24.

This new plant which went into operation under the name Kentucky Mills, Inc., directly employs 24 workers with an annual payroll expected to average somewhere between $50,000 and $75,000.

The plant is also expected to give indirect employment to at least 75 other persons who will be needed to furnish the raw materials used by this plant in turning out pallets of all kinds.

This raw material will be in the form of low grade logs which plant president L. D. Coursey says will be purchased from local farmers and timberland owners.

The significant thing about this neat little plant is that it came about through conformity effort in cooperation with resource development specialists of the Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Project who draw up plant proposals and did a lot of legwork in making financial contacts.

Also coming in on the project were the Area Redevelopment Administration, Small Business Administration, State Department of Forestry, Cooperative Extension Service, and the Kentucky Department of Commerce.

With the Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce taking the lead, plans for the plant were formulated and the support of the other agents solicited and secured.

Speaking for the local Chamber of Commerce J. R. Gardner, a Williamsburg merchant, said that through a locally organized industrial development corporation, funds were raised to purchase an 11 1/2 acre plant site.

Then through the ARA and SBA a loan was secured for construction of the factory building and the purchase of part of the necessary machinery and equipment.

In the meantime a partnership or working arrangement had been with Kentucky Mills, Inc., of Lewisburg, to operate the factory, to supply part of the equipment, and to furnish the pallet-manufacturing knowhow and working capital.

It took two years of hard work and many meetings to get the job done, Gardner said but the results were well worth the efforts because with the tremendous demand that now exists for wood pallets of all kinds, the economy of the county is bound to receive a substantial boost.

War On Poverty Is Challenge

By R. K. Kelley

The recently inaugurated Economic Opportunity (War on Poverty) Program and the pending Appalachian Program offer to Eastern Kentucky some new opportunities and new resources, but at the same time present a challenge to all citizens of the region which, in a sense, could be termed unique.

This is so because the basic philosophy underlying each of these new efforts is that—if given some assistance in the form of highway construction, water resources control and development, human resource development, etc.—citizens of the region will provide the leadership, local resources, and the continuing effort necessary to develop the new potentials created by the programs. In other words, all new programs and efforts will have limited success in the absence of an all-out commitment of time, financial resources and leadership on the part of local citizens.

At the same time it must also be said that because of the complex and deep rooted social and economic problems of East Kentucky, local citizen effort without adequate financial and technical resources, will show limited results. Finding the solution to these problems then must become a joint effort between local citizens and institutions, state agencies, and institutions, state agencies, and institutions of the federal government.

As we move into this 'new opportunities era' now made possible through the union of local, state, and federal resources we should look specifically at some of the ways by which we can maximize our efforts within the region and by which we can move forward in a more purposeful and effective manner.

These should include:

(1) Coordination, wherever possible, of all major local efforts through county and area development councils.

(2) A recognition, by the citizens of the region, that present approaches and local institutional arrangements may not, in many instances, be adequate for the new needs and new opportunities. This requires a willingness to take certain risks, usually associated with new approaches and new institutional arrangements.

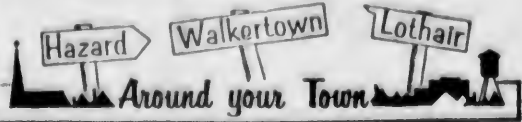

(3) A recognition that full development of human and natural resources of the region requires a combination of local and outside capital. Maximum benefits will be derived from bringing in of outside capital where full utilization of local capital, both private and public, is accomplished.

(4) An awareness that massive amounts of scientific and technological information must be blended with local needs, desires, and initiative to achieve maximum results in the development of the region. Special efforts must be made to develop new approaches to the application of technical knowledge in the solution of local problems.

(5) A willingness on the part of county citizens and officials to join in multi county or regional efforts is necessary to bring the necessary resources to bear on the problem.

(6) A full understanding of the complexities of the problems confronting the region and a recognition that vision, faith and patience in massive amounts are required.

Baked Oranges Complement Turkey

Everyone knows that cranberries and turkey go well together, but for a change, or in addition to cranberries, serve Spicy Baked Oranges. The whole oranges are boiled until tender then cut in half and baked and glazed with a sweet sauce.

Spicy Baked Oranges

3 medium oranges
1/2 cup water
3/4 whole cloves
1 cup sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

Grate off very thin layer of yellow rind from oranges. Bring water to boil in a saucepan. Add oranges, simmer 1/4 hour, or until oranges are tender. Drain. Cut oranges in half, stud round surfaces with cloves. Place, cut-side-down, in shallow baking pan. Stir remaining ingredients in saucepan over low heat to dissolve sugar. Pour over oranges. Cover pan; bake in 350 degrees F. (moderate) oven 45 minutes or until oranges are well glazed, basting occasionally. Serve hot or cold with meats. Makes 6 servings.

LET'S LOOK IT OVER

Frankfort—

Kentucky's travel and tourist industry, which set a new dollar record in 1964, should rise to even greater heights this year because of two, new bolstering factors.

One of these lies in the fact that I have designated 1965 as Homecoming Year in Kentucky, and the other is the availability of $115,000 in State matching funds to assist local areas in tourist promotion.

It all adds up to what I think of as "A Partnership for Profit" for the state, and all Kentuckians.

Figures taken from the Copeland Survey, an annual statistical report compiled by Dr. Lewis Copeland, University of Tennessee economist, show that Kentucky's travel industry last year broke all records.

Total expenditures by travelers from other states amounted to $238 million, which is $18 million above the 1963 mark. This was an annual increase of 8 per cent for Kentucky, 2 per cent higher than the national annual increase.

The $79 per year for every Kentucky resident which travelers from other states spend in Kentucky now is twice what tourists brought us 13 years ago.

Kentucky has forged ahead of a number of states in competition for the travel dollar.

But this is no time to rest on laurels; we have made only a beginning. Some states, starting a full generation or more ahead of Kentucky, are still far in front. Others, running hard and spending big, are nipping at our heels.

The competition this year is being stepped up. Ohio has approved a $500 million bond issue for the roads and is working on a $100 million plan to improve its park system. Illinois has appropriated a large fund for travel promotion. The warning is loud and clear.

If Kentucky slows down . . . but Kentucky does not intend to slow down. Kentuckians everywhere must realize the rapid growth possibilities of our travel industry. We need to invest in high-quality attractions; we must complete our highway system.

It is my hope that wise expenditure of the $115,000 appropriated by the 1964 General Assembly as a travel advertising matching fund will give Kentucky a real assist in promotion and bring many tourists into the state.

The primary purpose of the matching fund, fund, which becomes available July 1, for projects carried out between that date and June 30, 1966, is to encourage and assist local areas in developing community programs for tourist promotion.

How the travel advertising matching fund will work was outlined last week at a statewide conference on tourism in Louisville and will be discussed in detail at public meetings to be held in the regions in February. Allocation of the fund will be supervised by the State Department of Public Information.

The 1965 Kentucky Homecoming Year is one of the attractions that a regional committee may support with matching fund money. Homecoming Year offers an opportunity for all citizens to urge kinfolk and friends living in other states to make a trip to Kentucky.

Kentuckians now living in other states who come home this year will note a great many improvements in a beautiful land, and be salesman for us when they return to their adopted homes.

I hope that communities throughout the state will join in the Homecoming program. Plans already are in the making in Paducah, Ashland, Hendersonville, Lexington, Somerset, and other cities.

Every county and city in Kentucky can arrange for some sort of Homecoming day, week, or event—and profit financially by the effort. The undertaking does not have to be elaborate—just sincere.

O'Donnell Senior Citizens Fellowship To Be Started

The William F. O'Donnell Senior Citizens Fellowship Program which will permit persons 65 and older to enroll in regular college courses free of all registration and class fees will be initiated during the spring semester at Eastern Kentucky State College, Richmond.

President Robert R. Martin said that the program was patterned after the Herman L. Donovan program for senior citizens begun this year at the University of Kentucky.

Eligible are all persons 65 years of age or older and courses may be taken on the Eastern campus either for credit or as a non-credit course. Applicants who take courses for credit, however, will be required to meet all academic and administrative requirements of the college.

The program does not include extension courses at off-campus centers, nor does it include correspondence courses by mail.

Application to the program will be made to the dean of admissions at the earliest possible date prior to the beginning of the semester. Verification will be made of age requirements of applicants and permission obtained from the professors concerned.

Upon completion of a course, an appropriate certificate will be awarded.

Registration for the program will be held Saturday, February 6, from 8.10 a.m. in the Ferrell Room, Bert Combs Classroom Building. Senior citizens will also be permitted to enroll during the regular registration period February 1-2.

Dr. O'Donnell, for whom the program was named, served as the fifth president of Eastern Kentucky University from 1941-60. He succeeded the late Dr. Donovan, who was president from 1928-41, when he became president of the University.

Both men long advocated a program for senior citizens. In a report prepared for the White House Conference on the Aged, Dr. Donovan said, "Every college and university, both private and public, should open its doors to senior citizens 65 years and older to register for courses free of cost."

The educational philosophy of both men was that education was a life process which should be continued from the cradle to the grave.

Dr. Martin said that the program was appropriately named in honor of Dr. O'Donnell, who was instrumental in the expansion of the College's program of Saturday and evening classes which permitted teachers and older persons to better prepare themselves.

Especially attractive to the senior citizens will be the expanded program of adult education classes, which will be offered in the evening and on Saturday morning. A total of 65 courses have been scheduled so far in this program and others may be added during registration week.

A complete listing of courses, both regular and adult education, is available at the office of the dean of admissions or the dean of instruction.

Senator Morton Retains Committee Assignments

Senator Thurston B. Morton will keep his two committee assignments, Senate Commerce and Finance which he has held since 1959 and 1961 respectively, during the new 89th Congress.

Morton's appointment to these posts was ratified today by the Republican Senate Conference along with all other G.O.P. committee selections.

The action followed by two days his re-election as chairman of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee Chairman. The campaign committee's job is to assist Republican candidates for the Senate. The chair now automatically carries with it a ranking position on the new Republican Coordinating Committee. This organization, consisting of the five living G.O.P. nominees for the Presidency, representatives of the Republican Governors' Association, and G.O.P. congressional leadership, will unite all elements in the Party for the examination of its major national problems. It is after the fashion of plans Morton proposed following last November's election.

Of the Finance and Commerce Committee seats, Morton said: "I am quite pleased to continue to serve in both positions and shall do so in the interests of Kentucky and the Nation as I perceive them and to the best of my ability."

Morton is now the second-ranking Republican on the Commerce Committee — following Norris Cotton of New Hampshire — and fifth-ranking Republican on Finance.

His father's '65 Ford rides quieter than his father's Rolls-Royce

We know it's hard to believe a Ford could ride quieter than the famed Rolls-Royce. But it's a fact. Leading acoustical consultants conducted tests in which three V-8 powered Fords (Galaxie 500 Sedan, new Galaxie 500/XL and LTD Hardtop) with automatic transmissions rode quieter than a new Rolls-Royce. The tests were certified by the U.S. Auto Club. Of course, the best test of all is to get behind the wheel yourself... and listen to a '65 Ford in action.

That's what Chuck's father did. Ford's quietness really impressed him. But it wasn't the quietness alone that sold him. He shopped around and found that Ford offers features and models and quality that simply aren't matched by other cars in its class. For example:

- 100% new body—strongest Ford body ever.
- New frame "tunes out" vibration.
- Decorator-appointed interiors in LTD's, thick nylon carpeting.
- More luggage space than in most competing cars—trunk holds four 2-suiters standing upright with room left over.

- Thrifty, quiet new Big Six—the biggest Six offered by any car in Ford's class... 289-cu. in. V-8 in XL's and LTD's.
- All automatic transmissions have three speeds, not two as in some competing cars—smoother shifting, more economy.
- Silent-Flo ventilation (in 4-door hardtops) provides fresh air in car with all windows shut.
- Handy reversible key works either side up.

There's more... much more in a Ford than you'd expect for the money. Visit your Ford Dealer and take a test drive soon.

HAZARD, KY.

Folks bless my hide we will quit talking about this mild winter at least for the time being, this is Jan. 18th, and believe me we have had some what of a spell. It isn't as bad by any means that I have seen. The hard part of it all is getting use to it. Which I know it is hard to do after so much warm weather. We can rest assured anything can happen from here on out, at least we have a few things to be looking forward to, one is that we are over the hump as January is over half gone, then we know how February can be really tough as well as March but the spells in these months usually only last a few days. There is one thing that many of you have looking forward to is some hog killing weather. Boys, its here at this time, so get the ham hung up along side the mid-dlings, and I will drop by for a spell to chat and eat fresh hog meat with you as well as the Shucky Beans that I wouldn't be afraid to bet that many of you have a mess soaking at this time.

SINCE WE HAVE

Been talking about the mild winter so far this year, some of you had stated that you had seen one similar or maybe a little more warmer than this one had been. Mrs. Ben Woods from up the river states that she knows that we had one much milder than this one. She quotes the year of 1932, she says that she had greens, lettuce and onions all winter long, until the latter part of March, and she states that it really turned into a bad spell, which killed everything she had growing all winter. Thanks to you Mrs. Woods for the information in regard to the year and etc. Nevertheless what happens from here on out, we have had a fine growing year, bees have made a lot of honey, and in general crops have been above average. Regardless of what happens from here on we have a lot to be thankful for.

I FOR ONE

Am happy that I got my long handles all nicely washed and pressed just awaiting such a spell as we are now going through. As I listen to a song don't let them tear down that little brown shack in the back, believe me if it was like the ones I knew, I dare say they were worse than air conditioning in the winter time, because you did have controls on air conditioning, folks that two or three holer created a draft that would about suction that flap up on your heavy drawers. If it didn't do that they would freeze stiff as a board. No wonder so much epon salts were used in those days. Of course that was before any type of anti freeze was known, other than white light in'. I guess we will have to make the best of all with all these bathroom fixtures we have today, just one word of advice, don't let the darn things freeze. If you do you have had it.

COMES A STORY

That I know has happened many times. Hoyt Noble who has just recently finished Law School, he stated his first client was a woman that wanted to get a divorce, Hoyt states that he had worked really hard to win his first case, he had everything prepared, the big day rolled around, he stated you know what happened, The sorry thing went back to that sorry thing. Hoyt says my first case lost because of two sorry things.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

BURTON COMBS, FLOYD BURTON, LEX BEGLEY, have caught fish about all winter long. Lex Begley caught a 20" blue cat not too long ago. Burton says that most of their fishing has been done below Buckhorn Dam. You retired boys sure can set example for fish biting, because you have the time to catch them on these pretty winter days. Suckers and Red Horse will soon be on the move coming up stream, let's only hope that the streams can be well cleared of the Black Water before these runs develop. We are having some Black Water at this time, this pollution must stop before we can realize the benefits of these spring runs. This type of pollution must be brought under control. I would say it is up to the people that live within the area to voice their opinions in regard to it. Thanks to you Ralph Wright about the interest you have taken in regard to this. I only hope that many more of you will do the same. What can we expect if you the people of our area doesn't voice their feelings. What is the reason that the coal industry doesn't want to cooperate? Or maybe they do, let's get their cards on the table NOW Above all without any excuses.

Writer Comments On Strip and Auger Mining At Red Bird

By Amanda Slusher

Strip and auger mining on the head of Red Bird around Beverly has proven to be a sad, gloomy and threatening business for the general welfare of the public. In July '63 and even before then, loud noises could be heard from the powerful machinery as they were plowing their way deeply within our beautiful mountains, so as to Auger and rob them of their great resource, Coal.

Men's thoughts for the long summer hours were penetrated with the constant blasting, until many talker, if they could only find a secret place where they could hide from the constant harsh growling and roaring.

When the noon day turned to night, there was no rest or sleep because the roaring and cracking went on all night long, week in and week out. Some people have been driven out of their homes for the night and some had to move away to find homes elsewhere. This mining has brought much disaster to the country.

The Chamber of Commerce held its annual Dinner Tuesday night, January 12th at the Pine's Restaurant. Some 110 persons were present to hear Highway Commissioner Henry Ward, express his hope of seeing the road from Pineville to Middlesboro and from Corbin to M'boro reconstructed.

Ward said that if the Appalachian Bill went through Kentucky will receive about 20 percent. We are all much concerned and hope for improvement for our lovely state.

Our people are Kentucky's greatest resource, we must work together to make them grow.

New Insurance For WWII Veterans

Approximately 250,000 Kentucky veterans of World War II and the Korean Conflict may be eligible to purchase new insurance under the provisions of recently enacted legislation re-opening the GI insurance program. Olney B. Owens, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office, Louisville, Kentucky, announced. The new insurance becomes available May 1, 1965.

See us. We deliver: a big-car ride,
not small-car run-around.

Let's understand each other. We sell only one kind of Chrysler. The full size kind. The factory builds no pared-down versions.

Point number two. Almost half of the 1965 Chryslers we sell are priced only a few dollars a month more than the most popular smaller cars. That includes power steering, power brakes, automatic transmission, radio, heater and a 383 cu. in. V-8 that runs on regular. If you're going to pay the price of a Chrysler, get one. Move up to Chrysler.

Letcher County News Notes...

By John Lucas

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Webb, of McRoberts, Ky., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Billie Webb, to Mr. Paul Thompson, of Cronona. (Haymond). Miss Webb is a nurse at the Whitesburg Appalachian Hospital, and very pretty girl. Mr. Thompson is the son of Chester and Katherine Thompson, of Cronona, and a fine boy.

Mr. Earl Pruffitt, State Live Stock Inspector for Letcher, Perry, Leslie and Harlan Counties, was in Harlan last weekend. Earl is sometimes mentioned as a possible candidate for Sheriff of Letcher County.

Judge and Mrs. James M. Caudill have an invitation to attend the Inauguration of President Elect Lyndon B. Johnson and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey. Judge Caudill is a conscientious man, and is also a candidate for the nomination to the office of County Judge again in May 1965, and I think the good judge knows how to take care of county affairs.

The Whitesburg Yellow jackets basketball team defeated the Fleming-Neon High School team, the Pirates, 52 to 50. It is reported that this is the first defeat this year for the Fleming-Neon team.

John Freeman was found dead in bed just recently. John was one of the old Pioneers of Letcher County. He lived the latter part of his life at Neon. There is no time like now. There is nothing in the past that we can call back, so we should make the best use of today that we can.

A LITTLE BOY

I once knew a little boy
A little boy I said
He was a typical lad
Only his hair was read

I knew this little boy
Many many years ago
I knew him only
As little boys usually know

I was acquainted with him

As he grew and all along
And knew every time
He did right or wrong

I have lost that little boy
I am sorry to say
But this I do know
His hair is getting grey

He had his ups and downs
Just as other boys do
Come think now tell me
Wasn't that just like you.

CHAVIES NEWS

Janitor Rides Shovel To School;

Tom Stidham Completes Service Time

By Mrs. Hale Bowling

Mr. Tommy Stidham, Jr., son of Mr. Tom Stidham of Chavies has completed four years of service with the U. S. Air Force. He left Abilene, Texas, Monday on his way home. He has completed three courses while he has been in service, one of them was electronics.

He is married to the former Sue Dell Duff, daughter of Mrs. Mollie Duff. They have one child. They plan to make their home here for a while. Welcome home to Mr. and Mrs. Stidham and child.

Mrs. Mary Joye Riley, fifth grade teacher at Chavies, was absent from school three days last week, due to illness. Mrs. Frances Gross taught in her place. The Rileys have taken a child from the Buckhorn Agency to keep. He is Ricky Pace and is eight years old.

Due to the big snow that started falling on Sunday morning there has been no school this week. The children are really taking advantage by making snow cream, snow men, and riding and throwing snow balls.

According to the janitor at the school the road up the hill to the school house is so slick where the children have been skating that he just gets one of those big coal shovels out of the coal room, carries it to the top of the hill for a good ride. He sits in the flat part of the shovel and puts his hands on the handle and hollows for his big d-g, which is named Janitor, to give him a little shove.

From there he proceeds to slide down the hill until he comes to a halt in front of the "COW PALACE".

He parks his shovel there until he is ready to return to the school.

Now wasn't that real Economy?

While Stephen Napier was on his way to Duff's store Sunday he came across a Wild Cat. The creature was bigger than a dog and had an unusually large tail. Mr. Napier returned to his home for some fire arms but when he came back the cat was gone.

Donny and David Duff said they tracked the animal through the snow until they got cold feet, in more ways than one.

Mr. Benton Davidson, our good neighbor and town barber is about to get his new home completed on Grapevine, and we are all dreading to see it finished because we will lose our good neighbors.

BUSY

Writer Unable

To Attend Church

By W. R. Williston

Attendance at the Christian Church and Sunday School Sunday was 21; the offering was $6.40, but your writer missed both January 10 and January 17 due to illness. It is the first time I have missed going to church somewhere on Sunday since 1942, and it surely does hurt. But I am better now and hope I won't have to miss any more.

There is about five inches of snow here now and it is still snowing. There are no buses running now.

I have had some visitors this bad weather, including Elhanon Morgan, Dave Strong, Clarence and Helen Howard, Mrs. Charles Morris and others I can't remember.

There is a lot of sickness around here as well as everywhere else, I guess.

The Tiger of the year was just named Car of the Year by Motor Trend.

If that isn't enough of a hint, try Quick Wide-Track. (This is their year.) Or Turbo Hydra-Matic, the new transmission you can order that does away with shifting between shifts. Coupled with any of the quicker engines for the '65 Pontiac, it saves the roaring for whenever you need it. When you don't need it, the extra-potent engines let you just loaf along. This looting gives you the kind of economy you wouldn't expect from a looter like the '65 Pontiac. See your Pontiac dealer. He'll show you all 32 Pontiacs that are the "Car of the Year." They're the buy of the year, too.

10,000,000 Children just like yours. Almost.

In our rich land, 10,000,000 children are part of the one-fifth of our people who are distressed, underprivileged, forgotten. 10,000,000 children! And each seems destined never to know the bright promise that should be his simple birthright as an American. Economics, you may say, is the province of business and our government. But remember, morality is the province of us all. Where does moral conscience begin? Most of us derive our sense of it from the place where we worship. And if you care, the center of your faith can also be a center for thought, reflection and action about moral and ethical challenges of your community and your country—problems like injustice, need, inequality, violence, delinquency. President Kennedy said it: "God's work must truly be our own." Worship this week—put your faith to work every day of the week!

Buick Special V-6 goes easy on gas.

Its low price
goes hard on your resistance.

We put 6 big reasons to buy a Buick Special under the hood. And another small one on the price tag. The six are a set of the liveliest, thirstiest cylinders that ever zipped you merrily on your way. They're all arranged in neat, smooth V-fashion. They add up to 225 cubic inches and 155 horsepower, and make other arrangements of 6 cylinders seem primitive. That's not all. Special sports Buick comfort, Buick style and traditional Buick quality. The price tag? We saved the best for last.

$2343.00

Manufacturer's suggested retail price for Special V-6 2-dr. coupe. Price includes Federal Excise Tax and suggested dealer delivery and handling charge (transportation charges, accessories, other optional equipment, state and local taxes additional).

Wouldn't you really rather go first class?
